THE DILLON OR DILLIN FAMILY

The following Dillons were in Virginia at an early date, to-wit:
In Amelia County: 1783, John Dillen, had ten in family.

Peter Orison Dillon
Father

Belle Anne Dillon
Mother

Arthur Orison Dillon
(young man)

Arthur Orison Dillon
(baby)

In Augusta County: 1767, James Dillon.

In Cumberland and Goochland Counties: 1735, William Dillen. His Will dated in 1739, was probated May 15, 1744, and is of record in Goochland County. Had wife Mary and sons William and Henry and grandson James and two daughters. He was a large planter. His son William was in Cumberland County, 1782 and had four in his family. Thomas Dillon, son of the second William, and a merchant was married in Cumberland County to Miss Betsy Keeling of said County on March 15, 1787.

Thomas Dillen, probably a brother of the first William, died in Goochland County in 1744. His estate was probated in that County in 1744. Had a wife Mary. No children are mentioned in the probate proceedings of his estate..

In Chesterfield County: 1783, Joseph Dillon, had six in his family. 1783, John Dillon had four in his family.

In Fredrick County: 1743, William Dillon, a planter, had a family. He died about 1765. 1782, James Dillen had five in his family. 1782, John Dillen had eight in his family.

In Halifax County: 1785, Henry Dillon had eight in his family. 1782, Thomas Dillen had one in his family.

In Henry County: 1777, Benjamin and John Dillon.

In King William County: 1744, Mary Dillon.

In Orange County: 1785, Andrew Dillon had two in family.

In Rapphanock County: 1756, Michell Dillon.

In Shendoah County: John Dillon.

In Stafford County: 1742, James Dillon. He was married about 1747.

In 1752, Charles Dillon died in the service against the Spaniards.

The following Dillons were in Pennsylvania about the Revolutionary War period, to-wit:

In Cumberland County: 1780, John Dillin, revolutionary war soldier. 1780, Thomas Dillin.

In Huntingdon County: 1790, James Dillon had family.

In Northumberland County: 1786, John Dillon.

In Washington County: 1790, Peter Dillin had three sons and two daughters. 1790, Matthias Dillin had sons and daughter. 1780, Jacob Dillin, revolutionary war soldier.

We hope a descendant of one of the early Dillon families of Virginia may be able some time to compile a complete genealogy of all the Dillon families of Virginia prior to 1800.

The ancestors of my great grandfather Thomas Dillin have not been definitely proven. I am recording herein the best available data that I could get. This family was Protestant and was either of English or Welsh extraction. In the seventeenth century two brothers came to America; one of the brothers, probably John Dillon, was an explorer and colonizer and received large grants of land for colonization purposes in New York and Nova Scotia. He lived in New York and died a bachelor and intestate, and his lands upon his death reverted to the English Crown. The other brother was a planter and settled in Virginia.

It is thought that Henry Dillon, probably the first of the name to settle in Virginia, was our immigrant ancestor. Tradition says that our immigrant ancestor settled in Virginia sometime in the seventeenth century. Henry Dillon was in Virginia at an early date. According to the Register of St. Peter's Episcopal Parish and Vestry Book, Henry Dillon or Dillin was a resident of New Kent County, Virginia in 1689. His wife's name was Eleanor. Two of his children were baptized in the parish, to-wit: Nitt on August 1, 1689, and Margaret on March 15, 1690. He was a planter and owned large tracts of land in New Kent and Caroline and King William Counties, Virginia. Years ago the court house in New Kent County was destroyed by fire and all the records of his estate in that county were destroyed. His children—

2. Nitt Dillon or Dillin.
3. Margaret Dillon or Dillin.
4. William Dillon or Dillin, probably.
5. Thomas Dillon or Dillin, probably.
6. Henry Dillon or Dillin, probably.

FOURTH GENERATION

Probably Matthias Dillin, Peter Dillin and Jacob Dillin who were in Washington County, Pennsylvania, during the Revolutionary War, were brothers and the great grandsons of Henry and Eleanor Dillon or Dillin.

PETER DILLIN lived in Washington County, Pennsylvania, 1790. He was married and the parent of three sons and two daughters. He was a planter and was probably the father of 10. William Dillin who married and had a large family. He removed to Missouri about 1830.

11. Thomas Dillin (see below).

FIFTH GENERATION

THOMAS DILLIN, my great grand father, was born in Pennsylvania, prior to 1790. His deeds and private papers prove that he spelled his name "Dillin." He had a brother who removed to Missouri about 1830. Thomas came to Ohio when a young man and settled in Muskingum County, where he married Hannah Louise Mix, daughter of Amos and Clarinda (Barnes) Mix, either in Zanesville or in Muskingum Township about 1809. Before the Civil War, he removed to Maple Grove, Michigan, and bought a farm. He died sometime after the Civil War and was buried beside his wife on the farm at Maple Grove. He was a Baptist, Deacon and a Democrat. Children—

12. Peter Dillon (see below).
13. Amos Dillin, twin brother of Peter, born about 1810 in Ohio. Died at Charlotte, Michigan. Baptist clergyman. Had one son Willian and ten daughters.
14. Thomas Dillin born about 1812 in Ohio, died at Charlotte, Michigan

- and is buried there. Farmer. Married and had one son Lorenzo and two daughters.
15. William Dillin was born about 1814. No record of him.
 16. Alexander Dillin was born about 1816 in Ohio, died in Michigan. Married and had two daughters. Farmer.
 17. Clarinda Dillin born about 1818.
 18. Hannah Dillin born about 1820.
 19. Lydia Dillin born about 1822.
 20. John Corbly Dillin was born about 1824 in Ohio, died at Maple Grove, Michigan and is buried there. Married a Miss Babbs. He was a well-to-do farmer. Had two sons, to-wit: Llewellyn of New London, Ohio, and Rev. John C. F. Dillin who died at Bancroft, 1922. He was a Presbyterian clergyman. Had two daughters.

SIXTH GENERATION

PETER DILLON, my grandfather, was born in Muskingum County, Ohio about 1810. He spelled his name "Dillon." In early life he was a farmer, in later years he was a merchant. He lived at different times in Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota. Baptist. Democrat. He died in 1881 and is buried at Cordova, Minnesota. His wife is also buried there. About 1829, he married Rebecca Biggs, probably at Mount Vernon, Ohio. She was born in Pennsylvania about 1811. Her family has not been traced. Peter Dillon and wife removed to Cordova, LeSueur County, Minnesota, shortly after the Civil War. Children—

21. John Dillon was born at Mt. Vernon, Ohio about 1830, married Kate Buck about 1865. He lived at different times at Cordova, Minnesota, Placerville, California and Tacoma, Washington. He was a farmer. Died at Tacoma, 1920. Had three children, Viola, Orville and Irene.
22. Mary Dillon was born in Ohio about 1833, married a Mr. Metcalf. Had two sons. She died in Michigan.
23. Martha Dillon was born in Ohio, married William Button. Had one daughter, Amy.
24. William Dillon was born in Ohio, died unmarried.
25. Peter Orison Dillon (see below).
26. Amos Dillon born about 1848, died unmarried.
27. Malinda Dillon born about 1855, married David Robbins and had three sons.

SEVENTH GENERATION

PETER ORISON DILLON was born near Maple Grove, Michigan, September 5, 1846. He attended the public schools and graduated from a Chicago business college. Bookkeeper in Chicago. Afterwards removed to Lexington, LeSueur County, Minnesota and purchased unimproved land and cleared up a farm. On October 3, 1872, he married Belle Anne Cottingham, daughter of Blythe and Tacy (Sheldon) Cottingham, at Cordova, Minnesota. Rev. Wallace Hopkins, Christian minister, performed the ceremony. Mr. Dillon was 6 feet 4 inches in height, weighed about 200 pounds, had brown hair, blue eyes, fair complexion, square jaw, broad brow, was deliberate, thoughtful, slow to anger, kind hearted and of judicial temperament. In politics he was a Democrat. He was and excellent letter writer. In 1877 he removed to Manitou Springs, Colorado and died there on December 2, 1879. He is buried at that place. Children—

THE ROCKWELL FAMILY

FIRST GENERATION

WILLIAM ROCKWELL was born in England. The parish register of Holy Trinity, Dorchester, England, records the marriage of William Rockwell to Susana Capen, April 14, 1624.

The Rockwell family traces its origin to Sir Ralph De Rockwell, Norman Knight, who accompanied Empress Matilda into England, 1139, where she laid claim to the English throne. He ultimately joined King Henry II, and was given large grants of land in the County of York, England.

William Rockwell came to Dorchester, Massachusetts from England, 1630. He was a freeman and Deacon of the Dorchester Congregational Church. He removed to Windsor, Connecticut, where he died May 15, 1640. His wife, Susana Capen, was the daughter of Bernard and Joan (Purchase) Capen. She was born April 5, 1602 at Dorchester, England, and died November 13, 1666 at Windsor, Connecticut. After the death of William Rockwell she married Matthew Grant, May 29, 1645. Grant was the immigrant ancestor of General Ulysses Simpson Grant. She was Grant's second wife. She had no children by Grant. However, through one of her daughters by Rockwell she is the ancestress of General U. S. Grant.

William Rockwell and wife were the ancestors of General U. S. Grant, Samuel Huntington, Governor of Connecticut, and Signer of the Declaration of Independence, and General Jedediah Huntington. Children—

REV. HENRY SMITH was born in Leicester County, England, 1588. He died 1648 at Milford, Connecticut. He was the son of Erastus and Margaret (Cecil) Smith. Margaret Cecil was the daughter of William Cecil, to-wit: Lord Burleigh, prime minister of England under Queen Elizabeth. Rev. Smith was educated at Cambridge College. He was an ordained clergyman. He was a puritan. He was twice married. Nothing is known of his first wife. His second wife's name was Dorothy. She died at Hadley, 1694. Rev. Smith in the records is described as "a man of good family and who as the patriarch of one of the best sustained and accomplished families of New England is entitled to our regard as a gentleman of uncommon culture, refinement and firmness." He probably came from England in 1637 and settled at Watertown, Massachusetts. He removed to Wethersfield, Connecticut, 1639, and became pastor of the church there. Samuel the son of Rev. Henry Smith in a letter to his son Ichabod, described his father as follows: "He was an ordained minister. He was educated at Cambridge College, England. He came to New England by reason of great persecution. He brought from England both men and maid servants. He was five feet ten inches tall and spare, active and sinewy, delighted in sports of strength. Helped erect his house and first church building in Wethersfield, where he preached for several years. He was well featured, fair of skin, and had long curly hair, merry eyes and sweet smiling mouth, though he could frown when need be." His Will was probated 1648. He left an estate valued at 370 pounds. Children by his first wife—

Deputy to the Assembly or Court, 1635. Member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston. He was the 12th signer of the original muster roll. He owned the whole of Sagamore Hill at Lynn. He was appointed Captain of the Saugus train band in 1633, which he commanded during the Pequot War, 1636-1637. Captain John Endicott (afterwards Governor) was his senior officer. In January, 1637, his house and its contents were destroyed by fire. The same year he removed to Connecticut, and was one of the owners and founders of New Haven. The founders of New Haven were the most opulent company which came into New England. They laid out a town plan for an elegant city. Having had military experience in Europe and in the Pequot War, Captain Turner was from the beginning intrusted with the command and order of military affairs in the New Haven Colony. He located his farm between East Rock and Quinnipiac River. He was one of the seven members who organized the First Congregational Church in New Haven. Assistant to the Governor, 1639. Deputy in the Connecticut Assembly. He owned 800 acres of land and was one of the ten richest men in the colony. ABRAHAM LINCOLN

My mother told me of this man
In early childhood at her knee;
I took him for my hero then,
And still his deeds are dear to me.
His humble birth,
His sterling worth,
And spotless life my breast doth thrill:
His tragic lot,
By traitor shot,
Doth make me sad and ever will.

He was born in a small log hut
In the woods of a Southern land,
Where mountains rear their lofty heads,
Where rivers gurgle o'er the sand.
This lowly son
Was Nature's chosen one:
She had a work for him to do;
Sublime and great
By the decree of fate:
To God and man, his heart beat true.

This homely toiler, tall and gaunt,
Split fence rails in the forest wild,
For he could use the maul and axe,
The things he play'd with when a child.
His hands were tough,
His mien was rude and rough,
But his great soul was clean and just,
And full of love
That came from heaven above—
Love never marred by greed or lust.

There came a change to this rude man
Of giant frame and rugged face;
The nation asked for a true man,
A lover of the human race,
To guide the state
Through storm and war and hate;
To save his country, strong and brave,
Rose Lincoln, then,
The godliest of men,
To do his work and gain a grave.

He saved the nation, freed the slaves,

And spoke kind words to everyone;
He wiped away the tears of grief,
And thus all hearts by him were won.
 This man uncouth
 Embodiment of truth,
Ranks with the foremost of the ages.
 His deeds divine
 Will ever shine
The fairest on our history's pages.

This man whose heart and mind were pure,
 This product of the common poor,
Touches our hearts and him we love,
 His rugged face, sad and demure,
 Tells us a story
 Of tragedy and glory.
He died but left a glorious name,
 The symbol of the right,
 And mounted Honor's height
To live immortal in our country's fame.

He fell a martyr to the cause
 Of freedom and exalting man;
He was the glory of the war,
 A brave and true American.
 Prophetic sight,
 And judgment bright
Of all made him the master soul.
 A patriot grand,
 The calmest in the land,
He lead the way and reached the goal.

O, rulers of this mighty land!
 O, selfish leaders, great and small!
Let Lincoln teach you how to rule;
 He is the model for us all.
 Our faith in him
 Shall ne'er grow dim;
Within our hearts he is enshrined.
 He lived and died
 The nation's pride:
In both he lifted up mankind.

THE MASTER NATION

God dreamed the dream, before His vision passed
The worlds and suns and stars and space, all things:

The Universe, child of His thought, took shape.
He moved upon earth's western watery waste,
And spoke the mystic word: out of the Gulf
Arose the mountain, vale and plain, a world
Magnificent, in land exceeding rich,
In Nature's wealth immense—a continent
Whereon a great race might be born and bred,
Whereon might rise a nation fit to rule.

Thereon a race is born; the nation lives,
Which was creat'd without a doubt for some
High purpose by the skillful hand of Him,
The Lord and Master of eternity.
America, the last best work of God,
Should rise in splendor like the morning sun
And mould all nations, every race and tribe,
To truth, to liberty and to the scheme
That all men equal are before the law.

O land, keep faith with Him, but ever watch
The trend of coming things, the warning sign
And prophecy, which augurs peace or war.
The time not yet is ripe for peace: too much
Old error sways the rulers, lords and kings;
Too little they regard what's just and right.
Before sweet peace can be assur'd, some race,
Some nation, why not thee? shall hold in awe
The armed host, the world's usurping force.

Perhaps thou shalt change man's long destiny,
And strike the fetters from a servile world,
Although thou hast to meet in war on land
And sea the rival nations, old and young,
(Who watch thy growth with envious eye and hate),
And vanquish them upon the world's great fields
Of battle and in naval fights upon
The sea. Perchance the clash of arms and roar
Of cannons may resound throughout the world;
Thy starry flag, man's hope, should onward go;
And Freedom's song, and Freedom's music should Triumphant swell above the battle storm
Proclaiming justice, truth and liberty.

The throne shall not much longer rule the world;
The reign of monarch, prince and king shall end;
Old empires shall decay and fall; and on
Their tombs republics will rise. Ere that time
And then, wilt thou insure, if strength permits

Eternal peace and bliss to every realm?
O wilt thou onward bear His cross of love?
O wilt thou prove thyself the master land?

LIBERTY BELL

Let no man dare to scoff
At that old cracked bell;
Let every freeman doff
His hat to that old shell.
Its music once did spell
A nation's happy birth;
That old bell rang the knell
Of tyranny on earth.

Men responded to its toll,
Sincere in every thought;
'Twas the paean of the soul
That liberty bell wrought.
Now tuneless is its throat,
And silent is its voice;
No sweet note now can float
From it to make us rejoice.

Like those who lived that day,
'Tis numbered with the dead;
Its shell is here to stay
Although its soul has fled.
Old relic it is still
Sacred in our sight;
And it will ever thrill
The patriot with delight.

How proud we are of thee,
Bell of a former time,
Sweet symbol of the free,
Heroic thing sublime.
To the grand, old bell, now
Worn and silent in its frame,
Our love we vow, and bow
In reverence to its fame.

NATION BUILDING

Let other bards sing of the flowers,
Or battlefields and lonely bowers,
Or fleecy clouds and noon-day beams,

And other ancient, worn-out themes;
But let me sing with words of grace,
The purpose of the great new race.
Oh, let me sing the songs of fire
Which thrill our men with race desire.

One language, and one aim we need,
One land, one ideal and one breed;
The several races here must blend,
And make one race that will defend
This land against the foreign host,
From north to south, from coast to coast,
And love this nation like the man
Who is a true American.

We only welcome patriots here;
Let others leave this hemisphere;
Here in this land of Liberty
Our hearts should beat in loyal glee;
Our country's love should be a fact
That's proven by our every act;
We seek to build the noblest State,
And merit well a happy fate.

THE AMERICAN RACE

Our fathers' work so well begun
Shall onward lead us to the sun,
If we fulfill the noble plan
Which makes a god of every man.
The signs along life's winding way
Will guide us right if we obey
The higher call of heart and brain;
Dominion o'er the world we'll gain.

Dominion o'er the world we'll hold,
While we are young, when we are old,
If we shall train to highest skill
Our heart and brain and hand, and will
To crush the low, weak traits of mind,
To only give strength to our kind,
To only build with God-like might,
To only live the life of right.

No reason why we should not be
The master race; we all are free
To think and act and to perceive
The things we need and can achieve.

Let us become the iron race.
And take and hold the foremost place
Among mankind forevermore,
And send the light the broad world o'er.

THE WORLD SPOILERS

Such times as these distract mankind,
The kings are mad with conquest vain;
Each plans to build an empire great,
And rule the earth and boundless main.
The sea of blood is flooding wide,
And billows o'er the hill and glen;
The roar of cannons echo far,
And drown the shrieks of dying men.

The horrors of the battlefields
Reflect malignant sin and pain;
Despair benights the mother earth,
As host kills host for selfish gain.
The lust of gold, its many ills,
The pomp of pride which empire breeds,
Too long have cursed the reign of kings,
Too long have clouded noble deeds.

The kings may break the human heart,
May break man's law though old and gray,
May trample nations weak in dust,
May shout with triumph in their day.
The judgment day will surely come
To those who kill for land and trade;
The Judge beholds the awful wrong,
The brutal deeds that men degrade.

Before Him pale the earthly kings,
His throne is stars and planets bright;
He measures deeds and whirl of suns,
He reads the human heart aright.
Oh, spoilers in that last sad hour,
When death shall smite you with his rod,
How will you answer to your crimes,
How will you meet Almighty God?

THE FLAG OF FREEDOM

O'er the homes of the free, our banner waves,
The emblem and pride of our beautiful land;

The battles rage and the mad Kaiser raves,
But victory gleams from our flag on the wand.

The flag of our grandeur it floats in the sky,
The fairest one that was ever unfurled;
The hand of liberty holds it on high,
And proudly flaunts it the hope of the world.

O, star-spangled banner, child of the free,
The offspring of war, but pure as the dews,
The liberty loving people over the sea,
Gaze with joy on thy sky colored hues.

The patriot this flag does truly revere,
It stirs the heart throbs down deep in his breast;
He gives up his work, or the life he holds dear
To serve the proud flag, the one he loves best.

THREE HEROES

No straps were on their shoulders,
No medals had they won;
They were only private soldiers whose
Trench work had just begun.

Unknown till duty called them
To check the Hun's advance,
To strike a blow for freedom on
The battle field of France.

The first to fight, the first to fall,
Young Enright, Gresham, Hay,
Have made the sacrifice supreme
On French soil far away.

In them America gave his sons,
His blood and flesh and bone
To show the old world that the new
Lives not for self alone.

THE UNITED STATES

Dear land, you gave me birth and made me free,
And taught me carefully through golden years
The lessons that I need to know. Through fears,
And doubt and hate to love you guided me,
Through mental darkness to the spiritual morn,
When light and deathless beauty met my sight,

When I first felt the rapture of delight,
The bliss that's given to the heart reborn.
If I have failed where I should have won,
The fault is mine, not yours; I had the chance;
I'll try and try again, past errors shun,
Redeem myself, once more, perhaps in France;
If it need be, I'll give my life for you
In battle 'neath the red and white and blue.

YOU AND I

It matters not when you or I may die;
At most our toiling, struggling life is brief,
A little happiness mix'd with tears and grief,
And then the hand of death shall choke our cry,
And blind our eyes to land and sea and sky,
And still our dauntless heart which beats for love,
And dark our brain like ebon clouds above;
Death's mighty angel will not pass us by.
'Tis better to die a noble youth like Hale,
Or like heroic Warren in our prime,
And slumber in a battle-scarred vale
Than reach life's highest peak of hoary time
With little done for country, self or peers;
God measures us by deeds and not by years.

THE SOLDIER'S CALL

My country calls me to the war; the white
Winged dove of peace has left this world
Until the flag of freedom is unfurled
Forever o'er all nations; till the light
Of liberty dispels old tyranny's night,
Until Democracy beholds the hour
When it has broken Autocracy's grim power,
Until the leaders rule the world aright.
I leave my country for a foreign land
To fight the ruthless Hun; in sunny France
I may give back my life to God, perchance,
My love, my labor, all that I have planned;
Yet I would die to make the nations free,
To give mankind the fruits of liberty.

FOR LOVE OF COUNTRY

No mother loves her child or wife her mate
More than I love America; I try

To learn the truth, have tried these years that I
May live the life which makes a nation great.
The ideal is not yet my life; I wait
For strength and hope the character to gain;
Though I may fail I have not lived in vain;
The purpose shall forever shape my fate;
I'll serve my country, be its loyal friend,
In war and peace, and I shall never shirk
My duty. When I've reached life's fitful end
And weary grown with care and quit my work
I want to feel that I have done my best,
That I shall pass the patriot's rigid test.

IN SOLITUDE

I wandered in a virgin wood, one day,
Alone; the haunt of man I fain forsook;
I traveled onward reading Nature's book
Far from a beaten path or blazed way;
And here and there the flowers wild and gay
Were dancing in the zephyr, keeping time
To the music of the birds; the sun sublime
Spread glory on the flowers at play.
There in the forest I read His command,
In Nature, to obey the law of right,
To live the thought like blossoms of the vale;
And then I felt my inner life expand
Perchance like Paul's when he beheld the light,
Long years ago, from the lonely Syrian trail.

CALIFORNIA

In years gone by, in many pleasant dreams,
When roaming o'er the hills among the elms,
I saw the loveliness of sunny realms,
And Nature's handiwork, the starry schemes,
The forest, mead and field, the poet's themes,
The moonlight glow, the crimson sky of morn,
The wondrous beauty that is ever born
In mount and plain and grove and lake and streams.
Yet never did I see earth's paradise
Till I saw, through the Golden Gate, the bold
And rugged mountains in the land of gold,
Her sunny clime and stretch of azure skies;
Then I knew, at last, 'twas my happy fate
To reach the blessed realm, the ideal state.

RIVERSIDE, CALIFORNIA, ON EASTER MORN

As I behold thee from Rubidoux's retreat
Methinks thou wert born 'mid beauty's florid bloom
For some high purpose, and will not meet the doom
Of Sodom which, once, knew the tread of feet.
This rosy morning, thee, my heart doth greet
With joy; thou wilt live on when I am gone,
And others will behold thee in the dawn
Of day, and in the dawn of bliss replete.
Thou wilt have more than Father Serra's cross
To beckon men to thee on Easter morn
If thou are true to Him who was lowly born
In Bethlehem; thou wilt be like a cross
Aflame with glory from the orbs above
If thou dost ever build with thoughts of love.

PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

Behold the city in the floral bower,
The splendid mansions and the lovely cots
Among the bloom of roses and forget-me-nots,
Below the mountain peaks that skyward tower;
'Tis a fit place for culture to bud and flower,
To lift the soul above the mire of shame,
To mould a people to a worthy fame,
The goal beyond the lure of worldly power.
Oh, city, we love thee and thy mountain rills,
Which headlong rush to join the sun-lit sea
Through fields of golden poppies that nod with glee
Upon the slope of the eternal hills;
Thou are the synosure of every eye
That seeks for beauty 'neath the Southland sky.

POMONA, CALIFORNIA

Pomona's kissed by the gentle gale
Which, bird-like, wings along from the western sea
Surcharg'd with music of the lark and bee,
And bearing sweetness of the floral dale;
She is adorn'd with orange blossoms pale,
And deck'd with sunshine like a happy bride;
She dwells in beauty by the mountain's side,
The virgin city of a fruitful vale.
Amid the fields and groves by Nature blest,
Where golden mornings spread their rosy glow
O'er hill and park and home and streamlet's flow,
Pomona shines like a star in the west;

There church and college banish moral night;
There heart and brain are molded to the right.

MOUNT SAN ANTONIO, CALIFORNIA

At thy front gate they stand, the sentinels two;
The Upland City with its orange farms,
And Ontario, the dreamy town that charms,
Arrayed in blossoms of red, white and blue,
Upon thy breast the primrose doth renew
Its bloom each spring, as seasons come and go;
Thy silvery waters flow on from the snow
And kiss the petals of the larkspurs blue,
Which fringe thy garment where the deep chasms yawn;
Above thy head the white clouds sail along,
Below, the birds sing liquid notes of song,
The mocking bird at night, the lark at dawn;
Among thy crags which loom above the clod,
The reverent mind will turn to thoughts of God.

REDLANDS, CALIFORNIA

Perhaps you've toured around the world and seen
The beauty spots of earth—the Alpine peaks,
The art and ruins of the ancient Greeks,
The castles old, and Ireland's stretch of green,
The German parks and cities, neat and clean,
The terraced farms and mountain streams in Wales,
The lilies blooming in the Frankish vales,
And splendid Rome, the River Tiber's queen.
Yet these are not more fair than Smiley Height,
And Redlands, where the earth with flowers teem,
The garden, where the thinkers muse and dream,
And where mankind is thrilled with delight—
An Eden, where the rays of heaven shine
Upon a world of beauty near divine.

EUCLID AVENUE, ONTARIO, CALIF.

They who made this avenue long and wide
Construct'd with vision and with city pride.
We praise the street, its symmetry and plan,
And appreciate the artistry of man;
We love its flowers, trees and grassy sod,
The decorations made by the hand of God.

If we seek loveliness of earth and sky,
Here on this avenue it shall greet our eye;

A paradise of beauty is here in bloom,
Exhaling to mankind a sweet perfume,
A riot of orange blossoms with sweetness riven,
Inspiration to the soul, a dream of heaven.

Here the stars hang low on the breast of dark,
And on the mountains rest the rainbow's arc.
And here the mocking birds sing happy lays
Through moonlight nights, bright mornings, golden days.
Here trips upon the sward the oriole;
Here flits the humming bird in caracole.
The spreading trees extend their cooling shade
And cheer and bless the traveling cavalcade.

They who dwell by this avenue broad and fair
Experience life unknown to those elsewhere;
Here we find what the heart forever treasures,
Enchanting beauty, friends and home and pleasures.
Though we may go abroad, in all our quest,
We'll find no place like this for peace and rest;
A glory is here, some charm from above
Which touches the heart with the sanctity of love.

EUCLID AVENUE, ONTARIO, CALIF. IN FUTURITY

This scenic avenue stretching miles on miles,
Basks in the sunshine and with beauty smiles;
It runs from the river to the mountains' side,
Array'd superbly like a stately bride.
Its parkways covered with a velvet green
Are set with flowers and the rose is queen;
Trees standing like colonnades in a temple grand
Are comely features in this lovely land;
The fountains throw their lucid waters high
Which gleam in colors like rainbows in the sky;
Birds answer birds with songs of love and mirth,
Reminding man that Eden was on earth.

Here statues tower to the wise and great,
Memorials to those who served the state;
And they who see the likeness of the true
Shall catch the spirit of the avenue too.
The world shall come to view the splendid scheme,
Achievement born of high and happy dream;
Its flowers, fountains, statuary, trees and grass
Shall gain the lasting love of those who pass.

This avenue shall be seen by wonderful men,
The masters of music, sculpture, painting and pen;
And they shall dream by the side of the street,
And tell their stories with affection replete.

And travelers shall behold in Euclid Way
The finished work of those of a future day;
Shall see a glory we shall never see,
And beauty that we all wish could now be.

CHINO VALLEY, CALIFORNIA

This is the vale where all things grow,
And artesian wells forever flow;
The walnuts thrive upon this plain,
And apples, melons, corn and grain;
Here grow the strawberries luscious, red;
Here blooded steeds and kine are bred;
The sunny day and starry night
Proclaim the climate, here, is right.

This is the vale of alfalfa hay,
The annual crops are large and pay;
Here thrive the apricot and peach,
And sugar beets will yearly reach
Four times ten thousand tons or more,
So rich is nature's golden store
Of climate, soil and water clear;
For these this valley has no peer.

If you seek beauty, it is here,
Domestic flowers bloom all the year,
The skies are cloudless and serene,
The neighboring hills are always green,
The spreading trees extend their shades,
And smile upon the grassy blades,
And blossoms wild of varied hues,
Which daintily sip the pearly dews.

Come here and plow the fertile sod,
And make it bloom with wealth and God;
The valley land you can reclaim,
And grow crops that will bring you fame.
This valley is the home of man,
Of every creed and tribe and clan;
Come here and use your hand and brain,
And peace and joy and health attain.

THE CLOSE OF DAY

A cloudless evening closed the April day
In colors as lovely as a roundelay;
The setting sun, like some great ball of fire,
Shone, like a noble eye in animat'd ire,
And redder grew than scarlet pennant furled,
As it fell o'er the dark edge of the world.

As glowing beauty flooded the Chino Vale,
Immersing orchards, ranches and the trail,
I leapt into my flivver car and rode
Out through the farms; I saw a horned toad
Run o'er the road, and a jack rabbit bound
Across the pasture swifter than a hound.
Out of the field came the song of a lark
In happy contrast with an Airedale's bark.

My auto rolled on passed green-leaved trees,
Where often in mid-day swarmed honey bees,
But at that hour the noisy linnets were there,
Quarreling and fighting and giving the dare.

And on and on I rode, passe'd field after field,
Where everything grows with a heavy yield,
A stretch of green, of beets, of grain and vine,
A drove of hogs, a herd of dairy kine,
A poultry yard where the industrious hens
Were scratching dirt for food inside their pens.
Good orchards, rich in bloom, and walnut groves
Confront'd my eye. The cooing of the doves,
Quaint notes, and children screaming at their play
Were like encores to a perfect day.

Off in the distance beyond the avenue,
Within the range of vision met my view
The great frame derricks on the shrubby hills
Where crews of men were using rotary drills,
And sinking holes down deep through earth's hard soil
In search of arteries of crude black oil.

Within the vale the proof of thrift was seen
In bungalows, orchards and the fields of green;
The spirit of good will seemed to pervade
The hearts of father, mother, youth and maid,
And neighbors met neighbors on the square,
And peace and harmony commingled there.

The don't care purpose which is all the rage,
Which wrecks the soul and home in this new age,
May be at work to unwoman and unman
Those who now live up to the moral plan;
But still among these tillers of the ground,
True homes and real living may be found,
Some of the virtues that made life sublime
In happy periods of a former time.

When night drew her veil o'er the sun's last ray
And hid the rosy face of April's day,
From out of shadowy dusk above my car
Low down in heaven came the evening star.

THE SAN BERNARDINO GIRL

She came here from the foothill town,
Down from San Bernardino;
She was a new girl in this part,
Here in the vale of Chino.
I saw her at a rancher's house,
She was eating bread and butter;
She gayly smiled and winked at me,
My heart was all a-flutter.

I gave her a knowing grin,
But not a word did utter,
While she was busy as a bear
Eating bread and butter.
When she was through she spoke to me;
Oh, my, how she did sputter!
My heart it nearly ceased to beat,
And no word could I utter.

At last I dared this question ask:
"Is your home in Berdoo?"
She grew red, stuttered and she said:
N-no no, it ain't, d-darn you!
N-no such a p-place is on the map;
W-won't you f-folks here in Chino
Learn to p-pronounce the n-name right?
Sir, 'tis San B-Bernardino."

THE PIONEER

He had a giant frame and handsome face,
A kindly nature and a Christian grace;
A thinker born, of calm, judicial mind,

A leader rather than a manual grind;
Yet fate denied to him a great career,
The lure of the wild made him a pioneer.

He purchased land in an unbroken wood
Where trees were thick and large, where soil was good;
He slashed many oak and maple clumps,
And mowed underbrush and grubbed stumps.
He built his house and barn from logs of oak,
Removed the forest and the wild soil broke.
He worked early and late, all the year,
Through snow and sleet and rain his land to clear.

High were his hopes in the bloom of youth,
His dreams were noble as the gems of truth;
He thought of love and happy, married life,
Then wedd'd and brought to his new home a wife;
 She was a lady of sense and of worth,
A woman fit to give a hero birth.
Joy filled the new home with tender smiles,
And the bride never dreamed of future trials.
'Tis good the future's hidden from our view,
If it were not faith could not bear us through;
If the future were seen life's charm would be lost,
And hope would fade like a flower in the frost.

One day in answer to their heartfelt prayer
A blue-eyed baby came to cheer the pair;
His sunny presence gave the parents delight,
And home was dearer since he was the light.
Through summer days in field of corn and grain,
My father labored in sunshine and rain;
He rose in the morning with the meadow lark,
And toiled through the weary hours till dark;
When his day's work was done with heart of joy
He went home to talk with his wife and boy.

In winter evenings when the howling blast
In wild rage shook the house as it flew past,
Or when it moved more gently as a breeze,
And kissed the icy jewels on the trees,
By the roaring fire my father read a rhyme,
Or story aloud, or we sang till bed time;
And then we knelt in prayer upon the floor,
And felt His Presence enter through our door.

By our hearth was a feeling of good cheer,
And home to us was a place very dear;

Our home was a bright sanctuary on earth,
Where father and mother proved their true worth;
Which gave a charm that words can never tell,
A charm that is like where the angels dwell.

Now in the after years I'm sadly dreaming
Of that log house where lighted lamps were gleaming
In evenings long ago when he was there
Who gave me sympathy and love and care.
My father's life went out like some young sun,
A broken promise with his work just begun,
Leaving his home dismal as night's face
With all the stars dead in the heavenly space.

THE DEATH OF MOTHER

I saw my mother in young womanhood,
A beautiful woman, firm and brave and good;
I saw her in mid life, mature and grand,
One of the noble mothers of the land;
I saw her in old age, serene, content,
In glory crowned by a life well spent.

I saw her die and heard her gasp for breath;
I saw her struggle in the throes of death;
And in that hour there glowed in her face
A holy life, the saint's consummate grace;
She passed out of life a heroine,
A fit immortal for the world divine.

When I saw mother lying cold and dead
Beneath the snowy shroud upon her bed;
And then again as she in her casket lay
Pallid and queenly, garbed in dress of gray,
I felt the kindest influence I had known
Had gone forever and left me alone;
In her I lost my dearest, truest friend,
The one on whom I ever could depend.

That rainy afternoon, her burial day,
I rode behind the hearse which bore her away
To God's green acre, to her precious tomb,
Where she was buried 'neath a bank of bloom.
I, her chief mourner, bade her there adieu
Till we should meet in Heaven, then withdrew
To live as she would have me live on earth
In preparation of my new triumphant birth.

In love profound I to her grave repair,
And set thereon, heart's gift, sweet flowers fair;
And kneeling there I pray for grace and power
That I may honor mother every hour,
That in no thoughtless moment may I forget
Her teaching nor do what I shall regret.

When death bears me across the mystic sea
To be a citizen of eternity,
I hope in that new life I shall attain
To meet my honored mother there again.

THE ACACIA TREE

The acacia stands in my front yard,
A graceful tree of lordly mien;
It stands there like a friend on guard
In uniform of velvet green.

My acacia tree is tall and fair,
And wears a crown of grayish flowers;
It lifts its arms to God in prayer
Like Druids in the woody bowers.

The acacia to me is dear,
For it was mother's favorite tree;
It brings to me a sigh and tear
For her my sweetest memory.

And when the stars in heaven gleam,
And o'er the world their splendor fling,
I sit beside my tree and dream,
And hear the whirl of an angel's wing.

ALONE

I have lost those who were my own,
Those whom God gave;
I walk the road of life alone
Toward the grave.

Few flowers decorate my way
Down through the years;
I oft for solace pause and pray
In burning tears.

But faith looks up and never down
To comfort loss,
And points forever to the crown
Above the cross.

THE CALALILY

Sweet blossom lovely as a dream,
A thing of beauty in God's scheme,
Arrayed in robes of starry white,
The angels view it with delight.

The lily prays with upturned face
A prayer pure as mother's grace,
And in its pallid bloom refined
I see a beauty like her mind.

OUR HOME

Our house was like a golden dome
When mother was the light;
It was our sanctuary and home
Until she said "good night."

'Tis now a shrine, that home once fair,
Once rich in faith and grace;
The Lord was there and heard her prayer,
And blessed our dwelling place.

If God supplants my grief and pain
With bliss that is divine,
'T will be when I shall meet again
That dear, old mother of mine.

When faith shall build a heavenly home
For us up in the sky;
And we shall dwell in that new home
And never say good bye.

THE LOVED AND LOST

She loved the out of doors,
The gold of day,
The orchard, field and lawn,
The mountains gray.

She walked among the flowers,
The larkspurs blue,
Caressed the lilies and loved
The roses too.

Oft she sat on our porch
In her rocking chair,

And in her brown eyes shone
A heavenly prayer.

One day they carried her out,
Broken like an urn,
And bore her to God's acre
To never return.

I think in some new world
She surely waits
My homeward coming at
The sunset gates.

MOTHER'S HANDS

Hers were the hands of beauty, strength and grace,
Hands made to match her fine and comely face;
Hands of an artist, hands that were refined,
Hands that sweet Nature shaped and designed,
Hands that required a thousand years to make,
Hands white as shining waters of a lake,
Hands that were useful in the household toil,
Hands that old age and labor did not spoil;
Those kind hands often soothed my fevered brow,
But that is past they do not serve me now;
The soil of California, with gold inlaid,
Holds in its pulsing breast those hands God made.

HEAVEN

Where heaven is I do not know,
I wish I knew;
It may be here where lilies blow,
Or in the vaulted blue.

Some say it is in human hearts
But deathless love
Forever points to other parts,
To realms above.

THE DESERTED HOME

'Tis years, Dan, since I saw the dear old place,
But I know it well as I do your face,
Although the house has fallen to the ground,
And I see gloomy changes in all around.
Where is the barn? It too, is gone. Yet I Know this was my home in the years passed by:

The landmarks are here that I used to behold
When I was a child in the days of old.

There stands the pine on yon hill's sandy crown,
Where I used to sit and dream of renown;
There flows the winding stream where I and you
Have seen the red man in his bark canoe.
Here's the well, now dry, I dug long ago,
And there's the field in which I used to hoe;
In yonder meadow green I once made hay
From early morning till the twilight gray.

This home was bright with a good mother's cheer:
Here, in these woods, I ran free as a deer;
Amid these pines I've heard the robin's tune,
And picked blueberries in sunny June.
Here gaily played I like the breezes free;
Here, I was happy in sweet boyish glee:
But my wild heart where perfect bliss did dwell
Has known a sad change that no words can tell.

Not far from this spot on a hillside steep
In the bosom of the earth my kindred sleep.
Home of my childhood, humble, but the best,
You bring tears to my eyes, sighs to my breast:
The flowers my mother set by the cabin door
Have passed like the home, and will bloom no more;
Old home, so sad, that was once bright and gay,
All your past joys live in my heart today.

A NOVEMBER DAY

'Twas a chill day in November—
A humid day I well remember;
Some snow had fallen in the night
And was melting in the morning light.
A fog hung o'er the vault of blue
And hid the sun from mortal view;
The eaves were dripping on the sod,
The breeze was making the trees nod;
The grass was seer, the leaves were dead
And rotting in their earthly bed.

The day was dark and wet and dreary,
My heart was dull and sad and weary
Till I went forth beneath the sky,
And with the spirit's hidden eye

Beheld what Nature had to show,
And then my soul was all aglow.

RENA

She's beautiful as the shining night
Which follows after gloomy storm;
And all that's pure and fair and bright
Is moulded in her face and form.

The glistening dew upon the lawn,
The golden sun of cloudless skies,
The silvery moon and rosy dawn
Pale in view of her dark-blue eyes.

Grace and refinement can be seen
In all her movement, in her smile;
The rarest virtues deck my queen,
Whose soul of beauty knows no guile.

THE TREES

The shady trees
Our hearts do please
As we gaze on their glory,
Or seek their shade
To there evade
The sun light hot and hoary.

The cattle browse
Beneath their boughs,
Or chewing cuds lie there.
The squirrels run
And have their fun
Upon the branches fair.

Our friends the trees
Bow in the breeze
Like courtiers to a king.
They are the retreat
Where sparrows meet
To love and mate and sing.

Like dunes of sand
Would be the land
Without a shady tree.
And so we love
The trees and grove
Which grow through God's decree.

JIM

We've had our sports and our joys, Jim,
We've lived and grown old in years;
We've floated down time's stream, Jim,
And have now no cause for tears.

Though our heads are white as wool, Jim,
Though we're not straight as a pine,
Although our faces are wrinkled, Jim,
Our hearts cling to things divine.

Still we love the fragrant flowers, Jim,
That bloom in the woods on the hill;
Still we love the feather'd warblers, Jim,
And the purling of brook and rill.

We like to talk with the boys, Jim,
And join them in yarn or song,
And listen to their laughter, Jim,
For we won't be with them long.

Soon we'll lie down and die, Jim,
But the future we do not fear,
For we have lived good lives, Jim,
And been kind to our neighbors here.

SEATTLE

Seattle sits on many hills,
Her glory is unfurled;
At her feet is Puget Sound where moves
The commerce of the world.
Her bosom's gemm'd with pearly lakes;
The mountains tower near;
The fir tree forests skirt her bound,
The beauty of earth is here.
We doff our hat to this fair city,
The youngest in the West,
The gateway to the Orient.
Whom grandeur has caressed.

THE MASTER MAN

Revere and cherish the master man,
The blessed son of a chosen clan,
Conceiv'd in strength and born to health,
Embodiment of Nature's wealth.

As some keen watcher of the skies
With rapture views a new star rise,
So should we gaze upon the face
Of him who comes to serve the race.

He only comes at Nature's call
To do a special work for all;
The heart of hearts, the supermind,
He loves, he helps, he saves mankind.
He pens the word, the whole world needs
To broaden thought, ennoble deeds,
Or frames the laws, humane and great,
For science, liberty, better state.

BOYHOOD'S DAY

I'm glad to see you again old friend,
Before life's fleeting days are done,
And those sweet memories to recall
That dawn'd 'neath boyhood's summer sun,
When we ran o'er the grassy lea,
And pluck'd the gay, sweet-scented flowers,
Or when we threw stones at the birds
That sang amid the woody bowers.

Sad feelings come to me old friend,
When I think of that happy time,
Those boyhood days gone, gone for aye,
When our joys were indeed sublime.
The years have wrought a change in us
And marked our lives with deeds humane,
But we have lost the joys of youth,
And never shall know them again.

THE SNOW STORM

The dark clouds robe the winter sky,
And from their bosoms snow flakes fly;
The snow comes falling slantwise down,
And puts on house and hill a crown.

The crystal gems adorn the tree
And bush, the dead grass on the lea,
The garden weed, the fields of black,
And cover path and wagon track.

Snows lightly strike the frozen ground;
To listening ears there's no sound—

And then go whirling o'er the plain,
And pile up in the narrow lane.

The snow storm is a picture bright
To beauty's eye, to minds of light;
Those sparkling jewels, white and cold,
Are fair as diamonds or pure gold.

GEN. U. S. GRANT

Grant was a scion of the pioneers,
That nation building group who have few peers,
Who laid the foundation of the American State,
Who built the government which made us great,
And they who built the best known to mankind
Gave in the making body, soul and mind.

His years of training for immortal work
Were hard, obscure; in them there seem'd to lurk
Despair and failure; grief was in his heart.
But, oh, those humble years, his trying start,
Gave vision, purpose, strength to do the things
The nation needed done; and he on wings
Of achievement like an eagle in its flight,
Serenely rose to fame's eternal height.

He fought to win and conquer'd every foe,
But mercy gave to heal the crushing blow;
Grant was the soldier who preserv'd the realm,
He in the field and Lincoln at the helm.

In seven years this man, poor and unknown,
Had grown in stature, had come to his own,
Our leading general and the nation's chief;
A wondrous growth for him in time so brief;
For him who changed the course of history,
And made more sacred human liberty.

GEN. NATHANAEL GREENE

Great hero of many a battle field,
'Neath Northern sky and Southern pine,
His mighty arm did glory wield
At Eutaw, Trenton, Brandywine.
His strategy when in sole command,
His campaigns, maneuvers and retreat,
All show how ably they were planned,
The reasons why the foe was beat.

And there amid the battle's storm,
I see him like a cavalier,
Erect, and tall, a knightly form,
Enveloped with a noble air.
Best type of man the colonies grew,
Best soldier of his time save one,
No patriot ever was more true,
He lives the peer of Washington.

THE AVENUE

Along the shady avenue, paved and brown,
I walked alone at close of summer's day;
The avenue led me northward from the town;
Past cross roads, farms and orchards ran the way.

The workers in the beehives were at ease;
The mocking birds sang in the orchard bowers;
I saw red peaches in clusters on the trees,
Geraniums in bloom and wild sun flowers.

I saw the stars come through the twilight gate,
And line up on the azure field like tots
Who scamper through the schoolroom door, elate,
To play a game out on the vacant lots.

I saw lights gleaming through the open doors
Of cozy homes which nestled near the street;
The men were whistling while they did their chores;
In barns I heard the horses stamp their feet.

There Nature's heart, with peace and bliss, was rife;
The mad world I forgot; there came to me
A truer vision of the worth while life
On that straight road which led to destiny.

OBSERVATION

I strolled about in the open air
Among the trees and flowers fair,
In meadow green, in field of grain,
By singing brook, on ferny plain.

I saw in nature things which charm,
In pasture land, in grain sown farm,
And in the passion of delight
I saw night catch the ball of light
By morning thrown across the sky,

Zigzagging like a butterfly,
And hide the orb in its dusky hand.
As daylight faded from the land.

BEAUTY

We meet in Nature, face to face,
Beauty of inspiring grace;
Be it in star or tree or shrine,
We feel that beauty is divine.

Beauty waltzes through the dawn,
And paints the green on velvet lawn;
It runs in ocean's organ note,
And floats in song from linnet's throat.

We breathe it from the orange bloom;
It is the soul of that perfume;
We see it in the pansy's hues;
It sparkles in the diamond dew.

Like some sweet sprite in modest dress,
It speaks the honied words that bless;
And we behold in beauty's scheme
The glory of the Master's dream.

THE THUNDER STORM

One evening I stood beside the sea
Upon the green slope of a lofty mount
Whose head was diademed with crystal snow;
The icy gems adorn'd that noble peak,
As jewels deck a tall and queenly bride.
The silvery candles of the azure sky
Were hid behind the drifting clouds which frown'd
On heaven like bleak hills on a blooming vale.

The sable clouds pour'd out a lucid stream
Flooding the vale along that grand sea shore;
Red flames leapt from the bosom of the clouds,
Like kings from chariots making day of night.
Vast sea waves storm'd the tall, white cliffs and sang
With cannon-like voices, mingling their hoarse tunes
With deep majestic tones made by the wind,
As it swept o'er the rocks and through the trees.
The thunder roared like a Niagara
Beneath the dome of the evening sky; the earth

And humid heavens trembl'd. My heart beat time
To Nature's music, music wild and mad
Which flow'd from ocean's organ, played by
The Master's hand. The splendor of that storm
Awoke my sense of Nature's majesty,
Making me love the weird and wild and grand.

THE STARRY FLAG

Flag of my country, thou'rt precious to me,
Fondly I press thee once more to my breast,
Where I shall hold thee till life ceases to be,
Then mayest thou float over the place of my rest.
